NUMBER 34 — ADDISON AND WOODHULL, STEUBEN COUNTY, N. Y. — THURSDAY, AUGUST 20, 1936 — VOLUME VII

Annual Clambake of Woodhull Masons To Be Held September 6

Big Event, Open to General Public, Scheduled for Walter Hargrave Farm—Grounds to Open at 10 A. M. —Baseball and Sports are Features — Pit to Be Pulled at 4 P. M. — Reservations Must Be in By September 1st.

The annual clambake of Restoration Lodge, No. 777, F. & A. M., will be held at Walter Hargrave's flats, about one and a half miles east of Woodhull, Sunday, September 6. Tickets for the event, which always attract a capacity throng from throughout the Southern Tier region, are now on sale at Fred Sutliff's recreation center, the American House and Hadlock Bros. Service Station.

The grounds will open promptly at 10 o'clock in the morning. Clam bouillion, clams on the half shell and hot dogs will be available at all times from the opening until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. At that time, the pit will be pulled and chicken, clams, sweet corn, sweet and Irish potatoes, embellished with celery, rolls, etc. will be served.

An entertainment feature of the day will be the baseball game between the Woodhull Cardinals, current pace setters in the Little Six loop, and another strong aggregation in a play-off contest. There will be various athletic sports, softball, horseshoes and other diversions. All tables are to be under a canvass and ladies are welcome to attend. Reservations, it is stated, must be in not later than September 1. The event is open not only to members of the Masonic fraternity, but to the general public.

The committee in charge is as follows: general chairman, Jeffrey Smith; chairman of food committee, A. H. Gee; chairman of refreshment committee, Walter Reynolds; chairman of sports committee, George Hotaling; chairman of table committee, Roy Minier; chairman of finance committee, Frank Park; Everitt Kilmer, Charles Kilmer, W. P. Symonds, Earle Brown, James Rouse, Walter Smith, Jr., Park Boyd, Harold Husted, and the lodge master, Raymond Andrews.

Advanced Registration Starts This Morning

Registration for Addison High School begins today (August 20) at nine o'clock. All Seniors and Juniors are expected to present themselves at the school building today. Sophomores and Freshmen should register tomorrow (Friday), and pupils entering Seventh and Eighth grades should register Saturday. Hours of registration on all three days will be from nine to twelve in the morning and from one-thirty to four o'clock in the afternoon. It is extremely important pupils should attend the advance registration so that officials of Addison High School can provide the text-books required for their use when school opens September 8.

VISIT CANADA

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice E. Miller returned Tuesday from a trip to eastern Canada, visiting the cities of Montreal, Trois Riviers and Quebec. High points of interest they saw included the Notre Dame Cathedral at Montreal, the famous battle field on the "Plains of Abraham", Quebec's narrow streets laid out when the city was a dependence of France, and the shrine of St. Anne's.

Gossner Car Struck by Party From New York

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gossner met with a fortunate accident Saturday, when they were returning to Addison after spending the afternoon in town. As they were making the curve in the Rocks below town, a car, coming in the opposite direction, failed to make the curve and struck the Gossner car. The driver of the other car assumed the blame and satisfactory settlement was made before Mr. and Mrs. Gossner continued their journey. The New York car was damaged badly.

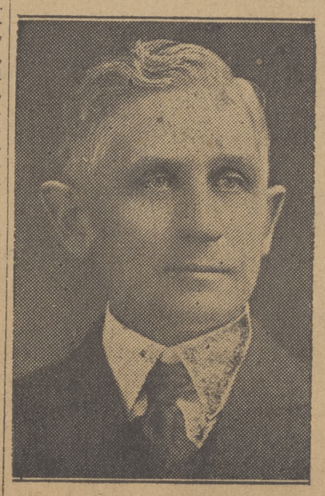
Justice Smith, Dr. Barron Named At Enthusiastic Meeting to Head New Addison Landon-Knox Club

Charles L. Crane as Temporary Chairman Pays Warm Tribute to Initiative and Energy of Dr. Barron in Getting Club Underway — Latter Responds With Militant Call to Action — In Fervent Appeal for Landon Support, Judge Asks Citizens to "Take up Cudgel" for Betterment of Posterity.

LANDON - KNOX CLUB LEADERS



JUSTICE E. C. SMITH
President

DR. W. E. BARRON
Vice-President

At an enthusiastic meeting Monday evening in the conference room of the newly-completed law offices of Attorney Charles L. Crane, organization of a Landon-and-Knox Club was perfected. Former Supreme Court Justice Edwin C. Smith was unanimously chosen president and other officers were named as follows: vice-president, Dr. William E. Barron; secretary, Mrs. Lena McDermott; treasurer, Walter M. Goff; advisory committee, Ray S. Brown, Mrs. Forrest A. Perry, John Russ, Mrs. Charles L. Crane, Fred G. Clark, Mrs. Lester S. Andrews, Maurice E. Miller, Mrs. Henry Sherwood, Kenneth Armstrong.

Attorney Crane, who presided as temporary chairman, paid emphatic tribute to Dr. William E. Barron as the guiding spirit during the formative stages of the organization. Dr. Barron, an ardent Landon supporter, was called to the floor for remarks and in a militant call to action, responded in part as follows:

"This is the most important presidential campaign in my memory—important that it so greatly concerns the good of the nation and of the whole people. The great and all prevailing objective of this campaign should be to elect Alf Landon president of the United States. Anything we can do by legitimate action to attain this objective should be the purpose of this club.

"We want our Constitution preserved and it must be preserved. Years ago, in my boyhood days, I felt that the Constitution of the United States, the foundation of this government under which we live, was a wonderful thing. I had no other thought than that this Constitution, this government must be preserved. I feel the same today.

"This infringement of our liberties, of our Constitution, now going on in a small way, even in a large way, must be stopped. I don't think we should be indifferent; on the other hand, we should use every legitimate effort to carry our mes-

New Deal Can Be Beaten, Rhode Island Speaker Tells Huge Throng At Corning Picnic and Rally

Charles P. Sisson of Providence Says That Burden Imposed by Present Administration Will Be Borne by Those of Modest and Scant Means — Senator Owlett Castigates New Deal Spoils System.

Republicans and Landon-Knox supporters from all corners of Steuben and neighboring counties thronged into Corning Saturday to hear the New Deal flayed by three speakers of national renown at the big GOP rally and Farmers' Field Day. The event, staged under the auspices of the Corning City Committee of which George A. King is chairman, was a complete success.

The principal speaker was Charles P. Sisson of Providence, former Rhode Island State GOP chairman, who was introduced by J. C. Latham of Canisteo, chairman of the Steuben County Committee. Mr. Sisson asserted that the Roosevelt administration had failed to reduce unemployment and relief during the past three and one-half years, although it had spent twenty-one billion dollars or more than the combined administrations from 1789 to 1912.

Hits New Deal

"New England is all through with the New Deal. It has nearly finished us but we are most certainly finished with its work and its people. I live in Rhode Island which was the first state to give the New Deal a setback. On August 6, 1935, a New Deal candidate for Congress was defeated by 13,000 votes after another candidate had won by 20,000 the previous year.

"If the New Deal can be beaten locally, it can be beaten nationally in November. Some may ask, assuming that it can be defeated, why should it be defeated? Here are some of the reasons:

"In March, 1933, there were 11 million human being in the United States who wanted jobs and were unemployed. On July 1, 1936, three and a half years later, Roosevelt had spent 21 billion dollars of the taxpayers' money and there were still 11 million persons unemployed. In March, 1936, there were twenty million on relief and in July, 1936, there are still 20 million humans dependent upon a public handout.

"During the short space of 41 months this administration has spent more money than all of the administrations combined from 1789 to 1912. In this 41 months the public debt of the nation has doubled. Every child that is now born in this country is obligated to pay $270 contracted by those who have mismanaged the government before the baby was born.

Says Taxes Increase

"Tax burdens have mounted to unequalled heights and they are carried, not by the rich as the New Dealer would have you believe, but by those of modest and scant means.

"Your money has gone for such typical projects as a tidal dam in Passamaquoddy Bay in the State of Maine, where 7 million dollars of a proposed 45 million dollars has gone overboard and if the job were even completed, I am told that a steam plant with equally great horsepower capacity could have been built on the same site for one-fifteenth of the cost. If you are familiar with the map of Maine, you know that Quoddy is the most isolated and remote region which could have been selected for power distribution in the United States.

"If you will look at a map you will observe that the most likely customer for the product of this enterprise would be Mr. Roosevelt's summer home on Campobello Island over the international boundary in Canada.

"Our money to the amount of some 5 million dollars has been going toward making Florida an island by undertaking to build a canal to the Gulf of Mexico from the Atlantic seaboard.

Boondoggling

"I would call to your attention $423,000 spent in Allegheny, Pa., to ascertain how many cubic feet there are in the buildings of that city. Who in heaven's name cares how

Three Million Dam to Be Built In Tuscarora Creek Above Addison

Federal Engineers Announce Location of Retention Dam on Farm of William Dininny to Hold Back Water of Creek — Work to Employ 2,000 Men and Take Two Years.

Addison is soon to be the center of activity in construction of a large retention dam at the William Dinniny farm on Tuscarora Creek, according to announcements by army engineers who have been working in the vicinity for the past few days. A second dam is to be constructed near Arkport, the two serving to hold back flood waters which in the past have inundated Addison and Hornell and swollen the Chemung river.

The Addison dam is to be built in the town of Tuscarora across the valley a short distance east of the junction of the main stream of Tuscarora Creek with Elk Creek. It will be about one mile east of the point where North Branch Tuscarora joins with the stream flowing in from Jasper and Woodhull, and will hold back all the main tributaries of this often rampaging body of water except the brook flowing through Freeman. The dam is to be an earthwork structure 150 feet high and extending across the valley at a narrow point. It will be some two years in building and cost three million dollars. The Arkport dam will cost one and one-half millions.

Construction of the Addison dam will necessitate changing the route of No. 17 Highway to higher ground as the impounded water at flood time would rise about fifty feet above the present road. Engineers from the Hornell office are now busy running a new line for this road, which will be constructed by the state as the dams alone are federal projects.

First work to be done on the Addison dam will be the construction of camps for the large crew of C. C. C. workers which will be brought to this location. It is estimated the job will employ 2,000 men. Before actual work can be started the land must be bought from Mr. Dinniny and others having holdings which would be affected by the holding back of flood water. Millions of cubic feet of earth will be moved in the construction of the huge wall which will act as a check to flow-off of freshets which in the past have swept down the valley to add to greater floods in the large rivers below.

A TIMELY DEMAND

Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace last week was bluntly confronted with the demand he resign his post. The demand was printed on the editorial page of the American Agriculturist which called for Wallace's voluntary retirement on the grounds that by radical and generally unwise policies he has badly crippled his own department and injured the whole cause of agriculture.

Four reasons listed by E. R. Eastman, editor of the American Agriculturist, why Wallace should resign are:

1. His choice of many advisers, including men like Rexford Tugwell, "short of agricultural experience and training, but long on new theories of government."

2. Disruption of the regular research and educational work of the Department of Agriculture by the secretary and his associates to carry out "new and untried schemes."

3. Losses to both producers and consumers through his policy of "making things scarce."

4. His attempt to regiment the farmers of America and put them under a government bureau.

"The truth is", the editorial continued, "that America and agriculture are too big for one man to regulate. There are few men in history who have had more leeway and more power in putting their pet ideas into practice than has Secretary Wallace. We believe that he is sincere in thinking that his ideas would result in the common good; but they have miserably failed, have held up recovery and brought additional suffering to millions. It is time, therefore, for both farmers and consumere to demand a new secretary of agriculture who will return the department to its normal and helpful functions.

"No man can place a value on what the Department of Agriculture has meant to farmers in past years, upon the untiring work of hundreds of research scientists who have dug out facts which in turn have been carried to the farms of America by colleges of agriculture and department extension forces. But how much of this work is being sidetracked and permanently crippled in order to carry on new and doubtful enterprises.

"What a costly experiment the Triple A has been! Its cost to farmers in loss of world markets alone is beyond measure. When it was dead, Secretary Wallace, more than any other New Deal official, was bitterly critical of the Supreme Court and the United States Constitution. Whatever the answer to that question may be, the Constitution certainly does not belong to the secretary of agriculture, nor can it nor should it be changed because it did not support one of the most costly experiments in the history of the government, an experiment which, had it succeeded, would have regimented every farmer under the complete control of a government bureau * * * *.

In criticism of the new soil conservation legislation the editorial said:

"First, it gives individual farmers subsidies for doing something which good farmers would do anyway, and which thousands of farmers have already done. In any permanent program no subsidy should be granted unless it is very plain that such a policy will result in good to everyone. It may be very well to pay a farmer for fencing his cattle out of a woodlot, to preserve this woodlot for the common good and for prosperity. But it is certainly wrong to pay a farmer for taking good care of ground out of cultivation, and this is the second point where the conservation act must be modified.

"Like the first AAA, it would make things scarce. As proof of how wrong is this policy, we cite the present drouth. How is the producer going to feel when he gets a few dollars for not planting that extra acre of potatoes for which if he had followed his own judgment, he would have received much more? No man or set of men is smart enought to control crops until they can also control the weather. What are you dairymen going to think about this idea of making things scarce which reduces the number of acres planted to grain when feed prices are going higher and higher? What do you dairymen think, also, of this policy of returning 30 million acres to grass and pasture, thereby increasing the livestock with which you will have to compete?"

This paper cannot too highly commend Mr. Eastman and the Agriculturist for bluntly demanding Secretary Wallace's resignation. The press of the nation has been too silent while the Roosevelt satellites, Wallace, Tugwell and Frankfurter have prosecuted their self- appointed job of making over America. If the 85% of American newspapers which are against the New Deal radicalism would add their voices to the Agriculturist's demand, this systematic sniping at U. S. institutions could be ended before the November election.

RE-AWAKENED VIGILANCE

In a non-political talk before a group in Rathbone a few days ago George King, candidate for the Republican nomination for District Attorney, voiced a truth regarding the attitude of the citizens towards government. "One effect of these times through which we have been going," said Mr. King, "has been to make the average citizen more government minded."

The speaker had related how the Pilgrim Fathers risked all they had to come to New England shores to form a haven in which their religious and political liberties could be preserved. How they were so jealous in guarding those new found liberties that at first they chose no rulers, but settled all matters of local law in the old town meeting by popular vote. How the liberties were preserved because every man took an active interest in public affairs, attending the town meetings and seeing for himself that no undue power was delegated to others.

It is well known to all how life became more complex in this country with the growth of great cities and the spread of population over vast areas. And with this spread of population and the growth of a party political system the average citizen has come to take less and less interest in the affairs of state, leaving these matters largely up to the politicians. Hence it might have been expected that the federal government would grow farther and farther away from the average citizen, and he would come to regard himself not so much an integral part of the government, as did the humble Pilgrim who stood on his feet in town meetings and raised a voice in support of, or opposition to each proposed law.

The popular theory of government in Pilgrim days was an institution to serve the people—provide protection from enemies, establish justice between man and man. Of late government has become regarded not as the servant of the people, as the Pilgrims desired, but rather as a master of the people. This reached a head when Congress in 1933 began unlawfully delegating its law making powers to the Executive and others appointed by him to set up the NRA and the AAA for absolute regulation of business and farming.

With the widespread discussion of the obnoxious NRA codes, and the rules forced down farmers' throats along with AAA benefit payments, the people as a whole began to take note of the widespread invasion of government upon private liberty. Curtailment of liberties they had always enjoyed set millions of citizens thinking more alertly of government. Altogether this was the first stir of a great awakening as people of all creeds and parties opened their eyes to the fact that the Constitution which they had always regarded as some kind of an instrument placed for safekeeping in a glass case, had in reality been a living thing and now was threatened. They awoke to the fact the wide interests of their private lives had crowded out almost all interest in the great government, of which they were entitled to be a part.

This awakening is still going on. People who never had bothered to vote are now taking an active interest in politics for the first time. And this awakening should be the most beneficial thing which has occurred in America for the last seventy years. It is probable a far larger proportion of the electorate will go to the polls this November, than has voted since the Civil War. Which is as it should be.

For if a greater majority of the people would exercise their civic responsibility — study the issues before the country every year, and always cast a vote of conviction at the annual elections, then would our government measure up to the standards set by the Pilgrim Fathers. When the people are indifferent, the politicians hold sway without curb and fertile ground is prepared for growing the seeds of dictatorship. As Washington said, "Eternal viligance is the price of Liberty".

If this vigilance has been thoroughly reawakened, there need be no fears for preservation of Liberty in America.

THE HOLE IN YOUR POCKET

A survey of recent industrial financial statements shows that one problem, above all others, is engaging the attention of business leaders. That problem is taxation.

During the first phase of the recovery movement, the output of many industries greatly advanced—but profits didn't, largely because of the increasing inroad of the tax collector into business' revenues. Today, with business betterment farther advanced, profits are rising—but, in the view of many experts, not by any sound proportion as compared to increased output. And again, the reason is largely excessive taxation. Executives and investors are beginning to wonder, and are justified in wondering, whether it will be possible for industry, even though "prosperity" of a sort returns, to earn profits compatible with the volume of sales and the risks of carrying on and expanding a business.

Government retrenchment, and the adoption of a plan looking toward the earliest possible balancing of the distorted budget, would do more than anything else in the cause of recovery, re-employment of the millions of unemployed, and the widespread investment of capital. Every citizen who wants a job and savings and real security would benefit.

U. S. Is Viewed With Britain As Last Stand of Democracy

By MARK SULLIVAN

IN AMERICA nine out of ten of us, so far as we think in terms of public affairs, center our minds on the approaching Presidential election. That is natural enough. Yet to discuss whether Mr. Roosevelt will carry New York, or Governor Landon carry the Mid-West, or how many votes the Union party will get—all that, ample enough in the comfortable times when America would be self-centered—all that seems tragically insular, in the light of the great forces that are abroad in the world.

Even Americans who pay any serious attention at all to world affairs think mainly about whether or not the present situation in Spain will lead to a general war in Europe. For dwelling on that there is abundant justification. But a more searching inquiry into just what is going on would uncover an underlying conflict of forces which is the fundamental pattern of the world's travail.

Until 1917 there were two forms of government and society. One was monarchy, with varying limitations. The other was democracy, of which the United States was the outstanding example. Democracy was the newer form. It was the latest model. Before 1917, wherever in the world changes of government took place, they were in the direction of democracy. That the whole world would gradually take on democracy was perhaps the one conviction most generally held by persons who thought about society and government.

Then, in 1917, came something new, the communism that was set up in Russia. This was thought by most persons to be merely a passing phase, an incident of revolution into democracy. But while we waited for democracy to arrive in Russia there came into the world another new thing—Fascism in Italy. And then years later a variation of Fascism took foothold in Germany.

Since 1917 democracy has been in retreat. It is no longer the latest model. Although the world has been in a ferment of change, the change has not been toward democracy. Since 1917 the two forms of society and government that have been extending the area they cover are communism and Fascism. Just now the two are in battle to determine which shall have Spain.

Is not that a correct outline of what is going on in the world? It is a picture of democracy shrinking in area, fascism and communism expanding. It is a picture of democracy in retreat, democracy fighting a rear-guard action for survival—with fascism and communism contending against each other for increasing areas of the earth's surface. It is significant, and to Americans alarming and pathetic, that fascism and communism do not, at the moment, think it worth while to fight democracy. They seem to take it for granted that democracy is through.

Whichever wins, and wherever either wins, both bring denial of the fundamental characteristics of democracy. Both deny the idea of a free society, both deny any distinction between government and society—both insist that government and society are one, the "totalitarian state." Fascism and communism both deny parliamentary government: both use dictatorship as the mechanism of government. Both deny the division of government into co-ordinate branches, both insist on the "authoritarian" conception. Both deny the supremacy of law, both conceive of government as government by men rather than by laws. Both deny the right of free speech, both deny freedom of the press, both deny freedom of religion. Both deny courts as independent tribunals standing between the government and the individual. Indeed, the broad underlying principle common to both fascism and communism is that the individual has no rights which government needs to respect.

To recite what fascism and communism deny is to recite what democracy assures. Fascism and communism are the negation of democracy. Wherever fascism or communism takes hold, it is the extinction of democracy. And today those who cherish democracy are under the necessity of fighting to save it from extermination. That battle is on, and up to this moment it does not go in favor of democracy. It is not too much to say that the United States, with Great Britain and some smaller countries, are the last firm stand of democracy. And it is the United States, rather than any other country, that is the last citadel. For the United States is, I think, the only country in which democracy, a free society, and the specified rights which go with it, are guaranteed to the individual in a written constitution.

That the battle goes against democracy in the world is certain; the map tells the story. Can we be sure that, even within the United States democracy holds its own?

If this is not the true pattern of the present state of the world, I should like to be enlightened by some competent student. To be contradicted convincingly would be a relief. But if this is the true pattern it is something for Americans to think seriously about.

Our Popular Front

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The meeting of Labor's Non-Partisan League in Washington, the speeches made there and the letter of President Roosevelt indicate that an extremely significant political alignment has come into existence.

For the first time in American history the class struggle has become a political reality. Without the long intellectual preparation which the working classes of other Western capitalistic countries have had, with its aim unclear, its purposes undefined and its adherents innerly divided, there has already come into being to support President Roosevelt an American version of the combination existing in France and being challenged in Spain: The Popular Front. Mr. Roosevelt's party is no longer the traditional Democratic party. It is a Popular Front party.

It has the same massed strength and the same intellectual weakness as the groups in other countries. The strength is apparent, and it would be very unwise to underrate it. It is the expression of a profound discontent, which is more than economic and which is felt perhaps most acutely not by the masses but by the intellectuals who invariably furnish mass leadership. One might describe it as the conviction of the inevitability of change; as a mental and spiritual distaste for the standards of the present society; as an inchoate cry for a civilization that makes some sense. Its strength is also, indirectly, in the lack of program and leadership among the conservatives. I have said it before, and I say again: there are amazingly few conservatives in the United States. The American is by nature a liberal, his liberalism shading from a cautious but optimistic view of change to a radicalism which recoils from revolutionary implications. And opposed to that we have a small Bourbon reactionism which is so totally without political instinct that it allows itself such a demonstration as the Liberty League dinner featuring Al Smith, or the appeal to the public by the steel trust which is so patently nineteenth century that the mind rebels. If conservatism cannot be dissociated from ownership, if it represents not a pattern of leadership and behavior but a mere grasp on property; if it is incapable of sacrifice, it is no longer a program which modern men will follow. There is a group in the Republican party who know this. Mr. Charles Taft incorporates a modern conservatism. But he and his associates have a very heavy load to carry.

The weakness in the Popular Front alignment, however, should be obvious to any one who has studied contemporary experience in other countries. That weakness has been most clearly elucidated not by the Republicans but by Mr. Norman [illegible]

GOP Leaders Discount Green Candidacy

Elmira, Aug. 18—Members of the several Townsend Clubs scattered throughout the 37th Congressional District have been surprised by the frank declarations of Clifford C. Green, State area director, in Bulletin No. 6 which carries the instruction to club secretaries to "read without fail at next meeting". The surprise is due largely to the fact that when Mr. Green announced his intention to run for Congress, first on the Republican ticket and then as an independent if defeated in the primary, he said the membership of the several clubs was growing so rapidly his political success was assured.

In Bulletin No. 6, issued from his home and office in the Rathbun Hotel, this city, he says: "This office, which is now without income, costs $34 weekly and this amount does not include the cost of maintaining my family 100 miles away." Despite Mr. Green's candidacy as a resident of Chemung County his bulletin indicates that his family continues to reside in Cicero, N. Y., in Onondaga County.

The rather serious situation in which the Townsend movement finds itself is indicated further in Bulletin No. 6 whch reads in part as follows:

"For the week ending August 1 not one new member has been reported and not one cent received from quotas. If this appeal is not answered there will be nothing left to do but mourn over the ruin.

"As in the past some of you may consider this as high pressure and refuse to comply with this appeal but the fact remains this is a poverty stricken organization starving to death for want of new members and quotas of at least 10 cents per member".

Republican leaders who have surveyed the situation have decided that the candidacy of Mr. Green, on the strength of his own statements, will mean nothing in the primary, especially in view of the fact he is not known outside his own organization and most of his followers are not enrolled and cannot vote in September.

who is perhaps the most precise theorist and one of the most morally unassailable figures in American politics today. But Mr. Thomas is not a strategist. Politics is a struggle for power, and in that struggle Mr. Thomas is handicapped by his intellectual honesty. The Popular Front strategy is to seize the opportunity, get the power, and decide afterward exactly what to do with it. Afterward it usually develops that a dozen different groups have two dozen very different ideas as to how the power should be used.

Labor's Non-Partisan League will support the Democratic party in 1936 in the hope that between 1936 and 1940 it can be turned into a labor party. That plan was stated clearly enough at the meeting on Monday, but it is not at all clear what the philosophy of such a labor party would be. One group in the League are Socialists, who have broken with Mr. Thomas on the question of strategy. They think the quickest way to socialism is via President Roosevelt, although they know perfectly well that the President is not a Socialist.

The president of the Non-Partisan League, Major Berry, and John L. Lewis, of the Committee on Industrial Organization, are not Socialists. On the economic side theirs is a program of vertical trade-union organization the erection of "monolithic unions to deal with monolithic industry," and on the legislative side, their plans are expressed in N. R. A. That combination might open the way for socialization, or it might open the way for an American version of what is called in Italy the Corporate State.

The personality of John L. Lewis is one of the most fascinating and debated in public life today. The very people who are now associated with him are the men who, within remembrable time, were denouncing him as a "misleader of labor," as a tyrant and dictator, as "the super boss," and describing him as the most dangerous character in the whole labor movement.

The role of the Communists in the coming election is also very interesting. They have put up Earl Browder as their candidate, but most of them will vote for Roosevelt. The Communists all over the world, are stepping softly. Their cause is now the cause of "Democracy." Here they have lately discovered that their ancestors all came over in the Mayflower, and their credo is expressed not in the Communist Manifesto but in a new interpretation of the Declar[illegible]

Republican State Committee Expected To Confirm Choice Of Albany as Convention City

The week's political highlight promises to be the meeting of the Republican State Committee to be held Wednesday afternoon, August 19, in Hotel Onondaga, Syracuse, N. Y.

While the business of the session will be more or less routine in character, namely confirmation of Albany as the Convention City, and the selection of September 28 and 29 as dates for the Convention, the assemblage will bring together Republican leaders from all over the state, and should serve to crystallize some degree of state-wide sentiment for the various gubernatorial candidates already mentioned, or to be mentioned.

Although there have been reports in some quarters that the plethora of Republican candidates for Governor may prove an embarrassment to the Party as a whole in the state, no definite fears are expressed by State GOP leaders. In fact, the general consensus has had it that the more candidates the better, on the premise that all are rendering conspicuous service to the party by their appearances in the sixty-two counties, and all should have every opportunity of bringing home their availability and qualifications to the people of the state.

By the same token, absolutely no fear has thus far been expressed by state leaders over the possibility of any bitterness creeping into the gubernatorial contest either before, during or after the Republican State Convention. This is felt to be true because the leaders are confident that, profiting by the harmony which prevailed at the National Republican Convention in Cleveland, where candidates subordinated their own personal ambitions and grievances, real and fancied, to the common cause of naming outstanding candidates for President and Vice-President, a similar condition will result at the Albany conference next month.

And it may be further said, with sincerity and honesty, that the feeling of leaders throughout the state is to genuinely support the candidate that attains the greatest strength within the party and who at the same time, appears to make the greatest appeal to the voters of the entire ticket. "Back room selection of candidates" seems to be as remote for the state ticket as it was at Cleveland. This is not editorial comment, but rather based on definite observations and contacts.

Activities and Rooms of and for Candidates

Activities of candidates and booms for them keep growing apace. Last week Senator George R. Fearon, Minority Leader of the Senate, spoke at Middleburg, Albany and Oneida. This week, in addition to speaking on the radio Monday night as Republican leader of the Senate, he addressed the annual convention of Volunteer Firemen at Tonawanda Tuesday, and the annual picnic of the Tioga County Republican organization Wednesday.

Justice William F. Bleakley of Westchester County, is accepting comparatively few engagements, his friends declare, because of sitting on the bench. This has also caused him to avoid discussion of state and national issues which might be deemed "highly controversial", it is added. It is declared, however, that if the movement for his nomination continues to gain strength, "and he decides to be a candidate", he will come out "from under wraps" and lay down a barrage of issues and oratory which, Westchesteries aver, "will cause the state to sit up and take notice". The Justice spoke last week at the Hamilton Republican Club in New York City, of which organization he was a member some years ago. He received his early political training in this club, under Robert P. Lewis, Republican leader of the district.

Friends of Borough President George U. Harvey, of Queens, are also making a sustained drive to bring home his "avialability and ability" as a potential candidate for Governor to Republican leaders of the state. Headquarters have been opened for Mr. Harvey in Hotel Commodore, New York City, and literature stressing his background, experience in public office, and the increasing majorities he rolled up in Queens since 1928, have been widely distributed throughout the state.

Added impetus was given Mr. Harvey's candidacy when John Timlin, Republican leader of Richmond County, endorsed him, and Warren B. Ashmead, GOP chief of Queens County, wrote to every county leader in the state asking first place on the state ticket for Mr. Harvey. The letter said that the Queens delegation of seventy would stand behind the Borough President as "the one man we know who would cut into the Democratic majority with devastating effect." He was offered as the "most effective opponent of the New Deal."

Mayor Rolland B. Marvin, of Syracuse, spoke last Saturday at Niagara Falls, and plans additional appearances within the next ten days. In the interval "Bill" Lane, his good man Friday, Saturday and Sunday, as well as the rest of the week, continues to contact county leaders in behalf of the hefty Mayor of the Salt City.

The boom for Senator Thomas C. Desmond, of Newburgh, has also been resumed by his friends and prominent Republicans in Sullivan and Orange Counties and by some fifteen up-state newspapers, mostly weekly papers. The Senator spoke last week in Kings County, and attacked the Lehman unemployment insurance law. He favored such a law, he made clear, but believed the existing law should be drastically amended.

While Senator Desmond has not declared himself to be a candidate, his friends say "he will accept the nomination if offered."

The managers of the drive to nominate Colonel Theodore Roosevelt for Governor are working hard, if quietly, to stimulate interest in the candidacy of the son of "T.R.", while he is making speeches thruout the East for the National Republican Committee.

In addition to the foregoing, a quiet boom has been launched for Charles E. Hughes, Jr., it is reported. Just who is sponsoring the boom for Mr. Hughes has not been made clear, but rumors are rife that it may be pressed if trial balloons remain unattacked by shrewd up-state Republican balloon busters. Faint booms have also been heard for Thomas E. Dewey and Hiram C. Todd, the former, Special Assistant District Attorney appointed by Governor Lehman to prosecute rackets in New York County, and the latter Special Prosecutor who obtained convictions in the famous, or infamous, Drukman murder case in Kings County. This is the case which may still drive District Attorney Wm. F. X. Geoghan out of office, if the recommendations of a King County grand jury are followed, and the Governor has the courage to defy the powerful Democratic organization of that county.

Gannett Accepts Speaking Post

Frank E. Gannett, President of the Gannett Newspaper Chain, has accepted the invitation of Republican State Chairman Melvin C. Eaton to fill speaking engagements in the present campaign. Mr. Gannett recently spoke at Corning and at Brewer's Point on Seneca Lake. On August 8, he addressed 8,000 farmers at Gainesville.

"I am delighted that Mr. Gannett has seen his way clear to accept my invitation to make speeches under the auspices of the Republican State Committee", said Mr. Eaton in commenting on the decision of the publisher. "He will be a tower of strength to the speech-making corps of the State Committee and his knowledge of public questions as well as his grasp of fiscal and economic problems will go far towards illustrating the fallacies of the New Deal."

Erie GOP to "Make History Welcoming Landon"

The Erie County Republican organization, headed by Edwin F. Jaeckle, County Chairman, is determined to make political history on the occasion of Governor Alfred M. Landon's visit there on August 25 and 26. Mr. Jaeckle, who recently returned from Kansas where he talked with the Republican nominee for President, has turned his leaders to the altogether pleasant but arduous job of staging an unprecedented celebration for the Governor of the Sunflower State, and has appointed H. William Pollock, Chairman of the Arrangements Committee for the two-day function.

Present plans call for the arrival of Governor Landon in Buffalo during the forenoon of Tuesday, August 25, at which time he will be met by a group of distinguished Republicans from Erie County, and he will be escorted to the Hotel Statler. He will receive local and state leaders there, as well as meet with leaders from the Eastern States, many of whom have indicated they will make the trip to Buffalo to personally greet the Republican National Standard Bearer. It is thought likely that a luncheon will be held around 1 p. m. Tuesday afternoon to be followed by a tea being arranged for Republican women by Mrs. Mabel W. Pomeroy, Vice-Chairman of the Erie County Republican Committee. The tea is scheduled to be held in the ballroom of the Hotel Statler at 4 p. m. and the Governor will briefly address those present.

During the morning and afternoon of Wednesday, August 26, Governor Landon will continue conferences with leaders from Eastern States, and then, at 6 p. m. will attend a dinner given in his honor by the Erie County Republican organization. The dinner will be held in the Elmwood Music Hall, and will be attended on invitation, by more than 1,500 persons. Following the dinner, the guests and delegations from the Erie County organization, as well as civic and taxpayer groups, will parade to the Offerman Stadium, where more than 5,000 persons are expected to gather to hear Governor Landon's first speech in New York State. Chairman Jaeckle and Mr. Pollock have announced the appointment of Harry Vogt, of Buffalo as Marshal of the parade to the stadium. Rochester, Syracuse and other cities near Buffalo will send GOP delegations to participate in the welcome of Governor Landon, it is understood.

Senator Benjamin F. Feinburg of Plattsburg and Mrs. Harold Remington of Watertown, will be the radio speakers on September 14, and Republican State Chairman Melvin C. Eaton, and Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Vice-Chairman of the State Committee, will be heard in the final Republican pre-convention program on the evening of September 21.

Campaign Buttons on Way to Counties

The query, "Button, button, who's got the button?" as applied to Landon-Knox campaign buttons, has been answered. It has been answered by reason of Republican State Chairman Eaton putting in an order for one million Landon sunflower buttons, which are now en route to the county chairmen of the sixty-two counties in the state. County chairmen, it is declared, are receiving initial shipments of the buttons, based on Republican votes in the various counties. Additional shipments of the buttons will be made at a later date, it was indicated. Chairman Eaton insisted a New York State firm be given the order for the buttons and has been able to bring other New York State manufacturing firms to the attention of the National Republican Committee, resulting in campaign orders being placed, it is said. The buttons, it should be added, are of course, union made.

GOP to Have Convention Book

For the first time in the history of the Republican party in New York State, an official program will be published this year for the State Convention, Chairman Melvin C. Eaton of the Republican State Committee announced. It will be dedicated to American principles, he said, and will serve as an invaluable political document of the era in which we live.

Plans for the program contemplate a book of -150 pages, measuring nine by twelve inches. It will contain portraits of Alf M. Landon and Colonel Frank Knox, nominees for President and Vice-President, as well as others prominent in the party. Many pages will be devoted to factual information on party achievements and state and national affairs. Names of all members of County Committees in the state will be included.

The next reunion will be held at the same place the second Friday in August.

Addison and Vicinity Citizens Have Chance to Vote in Great Nation-Wide Presidential Poll

Addison Advertiser and Woodhull Sentinel Among National Group Conducting Straw Vote — Small Town and Rural America Sentiment Being Recorded by Democratic, Republican and Independent Newspapers in all Parts of Country—Vote and Mail Straw Ballot Below.

Which of the presidential candidates in the national election this fall is going to carry New York, Steuben County and Addison?

Which of the candidates will get the highly important small-town and rural vote? Which candidate will get those votes in the majority of states throughout the nation?

These are questions, the answers to which no doubt will play an important part in the final national returns next November. Upon the choice of the small-town and rural America voters may rest the balance of power to swing the election for the successful candidate. Reports from throughout the country indicate that voters everywhere are manifesting exceptionally keen interest in the political campaign now well under way. All signs point to a closely contested election.

It is therefore of especial interest at this time that the publishers of weekly newspapers throughout the country have launched a nation-wide presidential straw-vote, to learn "which way the wind is blowing" with the small town and rural American voters.

In Nation-Wide Poll

The ADDISON ADVERTISER-WOODHULL SENTINEL have joined in with these weekly newspapers and will conduct the vote in this territory. A straw-vote ballot is published in this issue. It may be voted by any legal voter. You do not have to sign your name. It is important, however, that you sign the name of the town and state from which you expect to cast your vote at the November election, so that the national tabulation of your vote will be accurately recorded.

Publishers Autocaster Service of New York, producers of a service for weekly newspapers, is to serve in the capacity of national headquarters for this nation-wide vote. Your local vote will first be recorded here in Addison and Woodhull, then the ballot sent on to New York for national tabulation.

Our Votes are Important

Our local, county and state returns in this straw-vote will be of particular interest to voters everywhere, just as returns from other states will be of interest to the voters here. It is only through combined efforts of hundreds of weekly newspapers that such a record of sentiment in the small towns and rural America can be obtained.

It is therefore important that you decide now to cast your straw-vote in this balloting, so that your fellow voters for your favorite candidate in other states will know what may be expected from New York.

Of first interest, of course, will be the returns shown in our choices right here in Steuben County. Decide now to cast your vote. Clip out the ballot, vote it, write in the name of the town and state, then mail or bring it to the Advertiser-Sentinel Office, Addison, N. Y.

Returns Each Week

Returns in the local voting will be published in these columns each week as the voting progresses. National returns will also be published as soon as they are available, first release of which should be forthcoming weekly within the next ten days or two weeks.

Let's get the ball rolling here in Addison and Woodhull by clipping out the ballot below, voting it and sending it in to this office at once.

Which of the Presidential candidates is going to get an early lead in the first votes cast here.

First returns here should be mighty interesting. You'd better vote for your Presidential choice right now.

Higher prices for New York milk seemed probable this week as the Milk Control Board considered demands by farmers' groups for a raise because of drough. Stanley Piseck of Newport, head of the Central New York Producers Association which he claims has a membership of 45,000 farmers, told Com. of Agriculture TenEyck that unless his group received a flat rate of $3 per hundred for milk there would be more violence than seen in the 1933 strike. Relief Cases Only Are WPA Eligibles

In a statement to the press this week, E. Ray Hardenbrook, Steuben County Commissioner of public Welfare, makes clear that only certified relief cases are eligible for WPA employment. The commissioner's statement reads:

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:-

A newspaper article appearing recently has stated that the Commissioners of Public Welfare of the cities of Hornell and Corning, together with the County Commissioner could certify any unemployed person for jobs on W. P. A. A large number of men have come in looking for work, many from great distances. It is too bad that this wrong idea got out, as men looking for work should not be chased from one office to another.

The W. P. A. and P. W. A. regulations issued by the United States government and governing the Welfare Departments as well as W. P. A. state that all persons certified to W. P. A. shall be eligible relief cases. Mr. Lester Herzog, State W. P. A. Administrator, has stated definitely that no persons shall be eligible for certification to W. P. A. who are not eligible relief cases. This office is certifying only such cases as are brought in properly certified by Welfare Officers of the Town in which they live. We have not to date received certification forms for use under new regulations nor have we any official instructions as to when the new regulations are effective.

There may be some way by which the W. P. A. District Office can certify for work persons other than relief cases but the Welfare Commissioners of the cities and county are prohibited from doing so by law and federal regulations. It is regrettable that the interview with W. P. A. officials resulted in misleading information. This could have been avoided had the Welfare Departments been contacted prior to the publication of this article.

William M. Stuart of Canisteo Recognized as Authority on Coast Guard and Current Events

Recently Called Upon to Provide Basic Material for Karl Baarslag's Epic of the Sea "SOS to the Rescue"—Has Examined Most Existing Documents Regarding Coast-Line Protectors.

Canisteo, Aug. 18—If you want to know the complete and fascinating story behind the United States Coast Guard, don't go to the United States Coast Guard.

Because, strange as it may seem, the officials will refer you to a civilian in Canisteo, William M. Stuart, the author and historian.

It's actually happened. There is the case of Karl Baarslag, for example.

Karl Baarslag is the author of that best-seller epic of the sea—"SOS to the Rescue."

"SOS to the Rescue" was a remarkably successful book for the first attempt of a young ship wireless operator. So the Cosmopolitan magazine suggested that he try again—this time a series on the history of the Coast Guard.

Baarslag went to the main office of the official journal of the Coast Guard.

"I want a reasonably complete history of your organization", he told the manager.

The manager shrugged his shoulders and replied, "I guess there's only one person in the country who can give that to you. He's a fiction writer in a little town up in Steuben County—Bill Stuart, of Canisteo."

So Baarslag came to Canisteo and got his material from Bill Stuart.

And where did Bill Stuart get it?

He isn't exactly sure himself. But it seems he's been writing fiction and short stories based on Coast Guard life for a good manv years, and during the course of this time he has examined most of the documents in existence that concern America's protectors of the coast-line.

Mr. Stuart is also recognized widely as an authority on current events as well as United States history and the history of Freemasonry. He was one of the 19 writers who were charter members of the distinguished American Lodge of Research.

He has lived in Steuben County all his life and was born in Cameron. He is one of the most prominent, aggressive and best-liked men in the county.

To Suit All Tastes

TASTES differ; the casket that seems attractive to one client might not please another. Realizing this, we have chosen a wide variety of caskets and other funeral merchandise for our complete display room. No matter what style or material is preferred, there is a model available that will satisfy the most discriminating person.

This is equally true of the other services offered by this firm. Funerals may be had at any price, each one complete and conducted with thoughtful efficiency. We are equipped to perform ceremonies for any religious creed or fraternal organization.

sage to the great mass of citizens, to convince them of the seriousness of the present crisis in our governmental affairs, to further convince them that our situation demands the election of Alf M. Landon as President of the United States.

"I believe in a militant effort to reveal to all the people the true conditions which we face, the folly of many things which have been going on, the attacks upon our Constitution, the perils to our liberties which are sure to increase and crystallize in the event of Roosevelt's re-election. I don't believe the government should be in business. Even the government running the post office department cannot break even.

"We should get away from these things before it is too late. The only way in which this can be done is to elect Alf Landon to the chief executive post of this nation. Let us get in the fight in a militant way to bring this about."

In accepting leadership of the group, numbering 334 who were represented either in person or in writing at the meeting, Former Justice Smith spoke in part as follows:

"To my mind this is a time when none of us should think of our personal selves or our personal betterment. In every country, there have come times when men and women have fought and bled, when they were called upon to stand and be counted. Twice before in the history of this nation, our people have faced a great crisis. Once was when the colonists threw off the yoke of Britain. The second time was when our martyred president, the sainted Lincoln, gave his life that our nation might not be half free and half slave and this divided.

"Today, for the third time, we must take up the cudgel for the betterment of posterity. That may appear as a far-fetched statement. If you will but review a bit of recent history, you will agree with me. For years, the world was governed by force and monarchs. Then it was conceived and generally brought into practice that the people must have the say, that they should hold the reins of government. Thus was born our democratic form of government.

"The great war was supposedly fought that the world might be made safe for democracy, but we erred. Since then democracy has been gradually passing through the world. Instead, there has been a tendency toward dictatorships. In Russia we have a dictatorship of Bolshevism, in Italy of Facism. In Germany, we have the same thing under a different name.

"We all agree that the most economical form of government is the monarchial—when they have a good monarch. But the trouble with the monarchial form is that there is no way to get rid of a bad monarch once they have one. In recent, the once they have one. In recent times the feeling has arisen that democracy is too expensive. Here in this country, this feeling has been evident for the past four years at least. More and more have the people been willing to allow the Federal Government to set up a dictatorship. We have already been told when we could raise potatoes and how many pigs we could raise. In numerous instances, men have been thrown into prison for failure to observe the edicts of our dictators.

"Today an election is coming. It is an all-important one. If we are to lose our form of government, if we are to lose our rights that our forefathers have given us—then indeed, we are in a sorry plight. Our fathers fought and died that we might live in the land of the free and the home of the brave and if we allow this dictatorship to go on, then their lives and their deaths will have been in vain.

"In Addison, we should have a militant club for Landon and Knox. If you are ready to work, if you are willing to give the best that is in you, then I am ready and willing to be your leader."

Among others who spoke were Charles M. Salerno, Charles A. Miller, Milton H. Crane and Hugh Varn. Plans were discussed for a monster Landon-Knox rally to be held between primary and election day. Tribute was paid to Clark Baxter for his untiring activity in interesting local citizens in the work of the club. It was decided to canvass the village and surrounding country thoroughly for members, Judge Smith and Mrs. Lester Andrews being appointed to solicit the north side and Charles L. Crane and Henry Sherwood the south side.

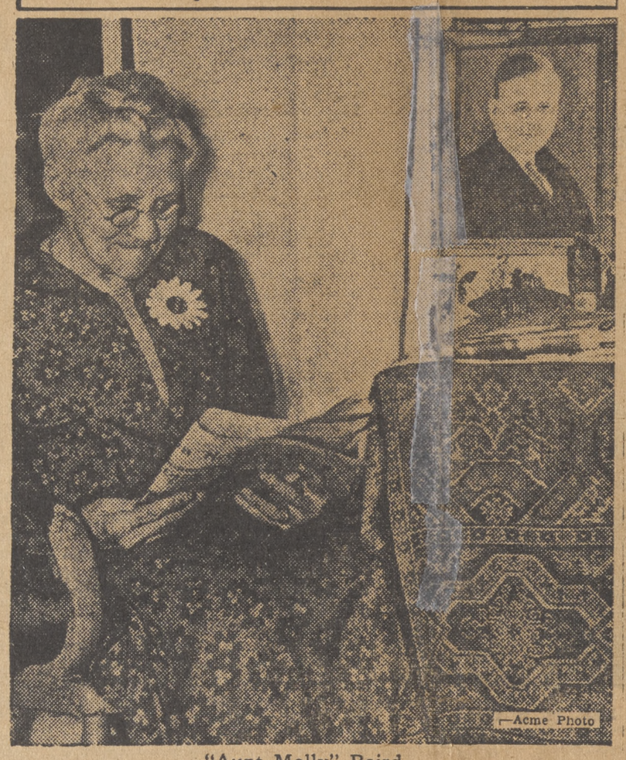
Aunt Molly Baird "Remembers When"



"Aunt Molly" Baird

WEST MIDDLESEX, Pa.—"Aunt Molly" Baird, now 85, is probably Gov. Alf M. Landon's first acquaintance and original proponent of his candidacy for president.

"Aunt Molly," more formally known as Mrs. Mary Reed Baird, assisted when the future Republican presidential nominee was born. She still resides in the little town of West Middlesex, Pa., not far from the Governor's birthplace on Main street and well remembers "Alf" as a baby.

Mrs. Baird has been made No. 1 honorary member of the Landon-for-president club of Mercer county and is prominent, even at her advanced age, in Landon activities.

movement, and it certainly does not represent a program.

Nor is it an enviable support for the President should he be re-elected. For among his Left-Wing followers are some who have been his most penetrating and even most contemptuous critics. They are men who do not want to follow him. They want to use him.

If he is re-elected his dilemma will be not dissimilar from that of Mr. Leon Blum. He will either have to harmonize ever more conflicting elements, calling for even more subtlety than he has yet displayed, or he will have to become the real leader of the Left, and therewith the founder of a new labor party—and of a more militantly reactionary opposition in all probability; or the "betrayer" of many of his supporters or—their victim. And what the President really wishes, what his social philosophy and program really are, I, at least, do not know. Probably not he, but history and events will decide.

Unusual Action Involves Corning, Buffalo Parties

Corning, Aug. 19—One of the most unusual legal actions involving an estate has been filed in Buffalo by Attorney George A. King, this city, in behalf of a Corning man who until recently was unaware that he was the son of his sister and that his father and his sister's father were one and the same individual. About $5.000 is involved in the court action, constituting his mother's estate, which she left to a girl she reared after leaving her father's home and marrying a Buffalo man.

About 40 years ago a Beaver Dams farmer and his daughter brought an infant to a Corning home, explaining they were the parents of the baby, and arranging for the child's care at their expense. Payments were made regular, with the mother visiting the baby at infrequent intervals, until the baby had become a husky boy when his father died and his mother moved to Buffalo to become a bride. Then all trace of them was lost.

Recently the Corning man was advised that his mother had died in Buffalo and going to that city, to visit her grave, he discovered that she had left about $5.000 to a young woman whom she had reared from childhood. The young woman had been appointed administratrix of the estate as result of her presenting a crude "will", not witnessed, that the mother of the Corning man had prepared herself on her death bed.

Lacking money and with a daily wage merely sufficient to support him, the Corning man decided he was unable to retain a lawyer to fight for his mother's estate, but was advised by his employer to see Attorney King who is known widely for his defense of friendless or financially embarrassed persons.

Attorney King not only took the case without fee but arranged for Attorney Clarence Brisco to go to Buffalo to investigate the circumstances surrounding the woman's death while Attorney King looked into the incidents surrounding the boy's birth. As a result they have secured sufficient evidence to prove that the former Beaver Dams girl admitted that she was the mother of the Corning boy and that her father was also the boy's father. The "will" being without witnesses or in legal form will be attacked under a petition filed by attorney King to have the Corningite declared sole heir of the estate and made administrator.

Proof of birth is the critical point of the case but a woman residing in Beaver Dams and one residing in Corning will sustain this part of the case. When Attorney King completes this court case the Corning man will receive a larger sum of money than he ever expected to possess and come to the end of his financial worries. Attorney King says that while his client has worked hard for a living he will not use his mother's estate to purchase luxuries but place most of it in bank for coming years when his earning powers will decrease.

KNOX DRILLING FOR GREAT BATTLE

HARD-HITTING, straight-shooting Frank Knox, veteran of two wars and Republican Vice Presidential nominee, will visit every section of the country to carry the message of the Landon-Knox crusade to cut taxes and restore government to the control of the people. Col. Knox says for every $2.12 being spent by the federal government, only $1 is being raised in taxation. This means the other $1.12 will have to be paid for double.

Know the Traffic Laws

At the request of Elmer C. Bovee, Chief of Police of Addison, 1936 amendments to the Vehicle and Traffic Laws are being published in this and succeeding issues. Co-operation of the public in observing the new provisions is requested.

CHAPTER 155, effective March 21, 1936, clarifies Section 71, Subdivision 1, as to who may suspend or revoke licenses and registrations. Under the new law it is made clear that any judge or magistrate in any city or in a village of the first class may suspend or revoke.

CHAPTER 156 effective July 1, 1936, provides that until a license has been issued, the commissioner is not required to allow the inspection or furnish a copy of an application. This means that even though the application is on file or has been rejected, it is not necessary for the commissioner to give out any information to the public.

CHAPTER 169 amends Section 15, Subdivision 2, to permit the display of lights other than white or yellow on the front of a motor vehicle operated by a chief or assistant chief of a fire department while in use for emergency service. This law was effective March 27, 1936.

CHAPTER 195 effective July 1, 1936, provides that a certificate by the court or clerk thereof showing the facts of a conviction, plea of guilty or forfeiture of bail shall be prima facie evidence of such act.

CHAPTER 260 which became effective April 4, 1936, extends the dealers' registration law to include those engaged in the sale, delivery or repair of motor vehicles and those making improvements thereof or installation of something thereon. The fee for dealers' registration remains the same but provision is made for issuance of such registration for half-fee on and after July 1. Dealers' registration shall expire on December 31 as heretofore but in order to allow ample time to renew, registrations in effect on that day may be used until midnight, January 10.

Musical Revue To Be Presented At Chemung Co. Fair

Elmira, Aug. 17—Selected from the ranks of the most beautiful show girls on Broadway, the last word in feminine pulchritude is represented in the cast of the New York musical revue, "Listening In", to be presented by Ward Beam each night in front of the Grand Stand at the Chemung County Fair, Elmira, opening Monday night, September 5.

Girls picked, come from such outstanding productions as Earl Carroll's Vanities, George White's Scandals and the Follies, and are notable for their talent as well as their beauty. Many of them have been taught by the leading producers of Broadway. Beauty is not confined solely to the cast in "Listening In". It extends to the scenery and to the lighting effects, both of which set a new high mark for outdoor entertainment. Two stages, one of them a triangular revolving platform, are used for the scenery, which, when masked, spans 112 feet.

A battery of sixty-three 1,000 watt lights, the largest number by far ever used for an open-air production, is employed. Included among these is a group of twelve ultra violet rays lamps, which shade the costumes and scenery in indescribable beauty.

The costumes, designed and fashioned by leading Broadway show designers, are in keeping with the beauty of the revue. They are outstanding for their striking shades, smart lines and an altogether dazzling ensemble.

Cattle Imports Peril U. S. Herds

Foreign Beef Is Feared as Disease Carrier to U. S. Livestock.

By FRANK RIDGEWAY

Farmers in the United States are jealous of the disease-free condition of their herds and flocks and insist that stringent measures be maintained to prevent the reintroduction of foot-and-mouth disease and other human and animal plagues through increasing importations of foreign animals and meats.

Livestock producers have become alarmed over persistent efforts being made in Washington to lower embargo bars that aid in keeping out highly contagious foreign diseases. Through their organizations farmers and ranchmen oppose the proposal of high ranking New Dealers to change restrictions now imposed on Argentine imports. Present regulations forbid the importation of meat products from countries where rinderpest or foot-and-mouth disease exist. Federal officials propose changes that would permit the re-zoning of the Argentine and admission of meats from zones declared free of these two maladies.

Farmers' representatives say that "the efforts to break down the present embargo are wholly based on economic grounds, and are pursued with a careless disregard of possible grave consequences." Lives of human beings, as well as cattle, hogs and sheep, are involved. Foreign meat is not needed; farmers in this country even now find it difficult to sell, at a satisfactory profit, the meat animals they produce.

Officials of the American National Live Stock Association believe "no one can fairly claim that imports of meat products from any zone of Argentina under present conditions would not constitute a dangerous threat to our herds and flocks."

They point out that the disease-free condition of live stock in this country has been attained at great expense. "That condition," says the association, "should be maintained in the future at all costs. No diplomatic coup, no international intrigue, no pressure from foreign-trade enthusiasts or well-meaning but misdirected free-trade advocates should be allowed to undermine it."

Farmers wonder why this nation should spend millions to clean up diseases and then have foreign trade policies that threaten to undo all the good work. The United States is the only nation that has ever successfully stamped out foot-and-mouth disease.

Western cattlemen cannot forget the big foot-and-mouth disease outbreak in California in 1924 when nearly 100,000 of their cattle, sheep, hogs and goats were destroyed to stop it.

How, What and Why

This paper has arranged with the Office of information of the New York State college of agriculture and home economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

"The Four Horsemen".

Poison Ivy

Mrs. A. B. P., asks for a way to get rid of poison ivy.

Professor W. C. Muenscher of the botany department replies: "Many methods have been applied to poison ivy, and success has varied. I have sent you a copy of Cornell bulletin E-191 which has the information you want. It tells how to eradicate both poison ivy and poison sumac."

Controlling Flies

R. F., asks if it is a good idea to lime the gutters in the cow stable; and, if not, what can be used to keep the flies down.

Professor E. VanAlstine of the agronomy department answers: "Ground limestone will do no harm if spread in the stable; neither will it help to control flies.

"Hydrated lime helps a little to control flies, but it causes some loss of nitrogen. Superphosphate, however, spread in the gutters and on the stable floor not only helps to control flies, but it saves some of the nitrogen that might otherwise be lost as ammonia in the air.

"Use about one and a half pounds of superphosphate a day for each cow, when the cows are in the stable all the time. When they are on pasture, keep the floor and gutters coated with superphosphate."

Danger in Wood Ashes

D. J. asks if wood ashes could be safely applied to land on which potatoes were to be grown.

K. L. Fernow of the plant pathology department replies: "There is considerable danger in applying wood ashes to potato ground because they make the soil too sweet. This encourages the organism which causes potato scab.

"Where wood ashes have been applied to gardens year after year, it is sometimes impossible to grow potatoes that are not entirely covered by scab".

County Agents Help To Build Greater Fair

Albany, Aug. 17—Recognizing the far-flung possibilities of Commissioner Peter G. Ten Eyck's plan to make the New York State Fair a state-wide exposition in every sense of the word, County Farm Bureau Agents are working for improvement of the fair at Syracuse, September 6 to 12.

Commissioner Ten Eyck's request for cooperation of County Agents was made in connection with the conference of farm and business leaders at Syracuse July 29, when plans and suggestions for broadening the scope of the exposition were discussed.

"I have letters from County Agents", Commissioner Ten Eyck said, "assuring me of their support in building a great agricultural and industrial exposition. That is worthwhile support. I have reason to believe every Farm Bureau agent in New York State is joining in this campaign to extend the appeal of the State Fair to all parts of the state.

"The first agent to write me, assuring me he was putting forth extra effort for a greater State Fair, was J. D. King of Rensselaer County. If all other county agents will see that their Farm Bureau members are fully informed about the fair, it will be a progressive step.

"There is so much to see and do at the State Fair, that no one possibly could have a dull moment there. There is just exactly as much to interest the city family as the farm family—and when our plans materialize, I hope to see the New York State Fair attain second to none on this continent.

"It is my honest belief that lack of interest in sections of the state considerably removed from Syracuse during recent years is explained simply by lack of knowledge of what the State Fair has to offer in the way of entertainment. Newspaper publishers who attended the Syracuse meeting last month complained of the lack of information in former years. We have been trying to tell the story to all the people of the state this year, but we can't succeed without the assistance of public spirited organizations such as the Farm Bureau, Chamber of Commerce, the Grange, Women's Clubs, 4-H Clubs, newspapers and schools in spreading the word about our living textbook and theatre—the State Fair".

Order Dealers Pay Producers More for Milk

Albany, Aug. 17 — Higher milk prices to producers are in effect and "if drouth conditions or results of the drouth become as severe as all appearances and forecasts indicate, there will have to be another raise in prices to producers", Commissioner Peter G. Ten Eyck of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets said this week.

Commissioner Ten Eyck ordered the increased producers prices to become effective Sunday, August 16. Under the provisions of the order, dairymen will receive an increase of 25 cents per hundred pounds for milk utilized as fluid class 1, advancing that price to $2.70.

Milk used in class 2-A, fluid cream; class 2-B, plain condensed milk, and 2-C, for manufacture into ice cream in New York City, is ordered to return dairymen a minimum of $2.05 a hundred pounds. That is an advance of 15 cents. These advances were directed after a public hearing conducted by Commissioner Ten Eyck at Albany on Tuesday, August 11 when it became evident that producers must receive more money for their milk to compensate them for added production costs directly attributed to the drouth. Cream prices were increased to consumers.

"I do not feel that the authority of the state should be used at this time to advance consumer prices for fluid milk", Commissioner Ten Eyck said. "On the other hand, there is no disputing the fact that costs of producing milk on our dairy farms have mounted over the last two months in the face of the drouth.

"At the public hearing not one voice was raised in protest against paying the farmer more money for his milk. I know that the dairyman must get more money for the milk he produces if he is to continue to supply a sufficient amount of clean, wholesome, sanitary milk to the consuming population of New York State's cities and villages. The constancy of that vital milk supply must not be impaired or jeopardized.

"If still another increase in the producer price becomes necessary later in the fall, consumers undoubtedly will be required to pay more for their milk. Such an increase in consumer prices would be inevitable under those conditions.

"It should be borne in mind that all fluid milk prices set up by the Department of Agriculture and Markets since the beginning of milk control, have been minimum prices only. At no time has any restriction been placed on dealers to prevent them from increasing their resale prices in keeping with their business requirements, special services or higher quality products. That fundamental principle has been followed rigorously throughout the history of milk control in this state.

Hope Will Direct G.O.P. Farm Group

Agricultural Division to Work With Township Committees.

Chicago.—Practical farmers will take an active part in directing the Republican campaign in rural areas, Congressman Clifford D. Hope of Garden City, Kas., announced in assuming the directorship of the Farm Division of the Republican National Committee.

In each agricultural state, an advisory council is to be set up. This council is to be composed of practical "dirt" farmers who will supply the basic suggestions for the campaign.

Three assistant directors have been appointed to aid Congressman Hope. They are Don L. Berry of Indianola, Iowa, publisher of the Indianola Record; E. H. Taylor of Yates Center, Kansas, for 12 years assistant editor of The Country Gentleman, and Congressman Francis D. Culkin of Oswego, New York, an authority on dairying and active in legislation affecting dairy farmers.

"The Republican farm campaign is going to have its roots out in the farm districts," said Congressman Hope. "The farmers themselves will tell us what they want and how they feel about things."

25,000 Loaves Rot in One Field

Carrollton, Ill.—Many sections of the West are scared by the effects of the drought, but Greene County in this state presents scenes of growing crop destruction as a result of "planned economy through scarcity."

The Carrollton Patriot reports that 25,000 potential loaves of bread are rotting in a field at the west end of the city limits, alongside route 108.

Last fall, Meade Keeley, owner of the field, signed up for the Roosevelt crop reduction program. He had already sown his wheat before signing a contract which provided that he should reduce his production by 17 acres.

This 17-acre field was not harvested in the usual manner. Mr. Keeley cut the wheat and let it lie as it fell.

The Patriot asserts that any farmer whose wheat yielded 15 or more bushels to the acre would have had more money had he not signed a crop reduction contract.

"In Mr. Keeley's case," the Patriot says, "that 17-acre field would have yielded 340 bushels on the lesser basis of his other fields, or more than 500 bushels if it produced in proportion to the best plot. Though he received $13.50 per acre bonus from the government, he would still have been more than $100, possibly $300 better off if he had not signed that contract.

NORTHRUP HILL

During the storm last Monday lightning struck a big barn on the Lewis Williams farm. No damage was done although the wheat and oats were in the barn and cows under the end where it struck.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Williams and three children, Mrs. Watson Johnson, two children; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sullivan attended the G. L. F. meeting at Woodhull, Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Francisco of Hornell spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sullivan.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Johnson visited relatives in Hartsville and other places near there Sunday.

Wilson, Wilbor and Lester Horton and mother Mrs. Maude Horton of Woodhull were calling in this vicinity Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Sherwood and Alton Sherwood accompanied their daughter Mrs. James Bouten who is seriously ill, to the St. James Hospital at Hornell, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Draper and three children spent Monday and Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Williams.

Reuben Sherwood had the misfortune to fall backwards off a load of oats injuring his back and shoulders. No bones were broken.

Grant Stone who has been a patient in a Bath hospital for a week returned home Thursday for a few days but will return this week for an operation.

Mrs. Lewis Williams and son, Mrs. Cassie Draper and two children, were in Addison, Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sullivan were in Addison, Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard DeMun and two daughters of Rochester spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mrs. Alma DeMun, after attending the Northrup reunion. Harold Williams returned home with them for a visit of a week.

Those from this vicinity who attended the Northrup reunion held at the Rathbone Grange Hall with Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Sherwood as host and hostess are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Watson Johnson, Carl, Wendell, Ralph, Harry and Alice Johnson, Mrs. Alma DeMun, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Williams, Harold, Paul, Glen, Eva, Arda and Merle Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Sherwood, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Sherwood and Lester Sherwood.

National Leader Endorses Program for Dairy

Two features of the farm bureau dairy program were endorsed by Lewis W. Morley, secretary of the American Jersey Cattle Club, in his address at the Jersey Breeders Field Day at the Cash Willis farm Saturday.

"You can say to every dairyman", Mr. Morley stated, "be sure to get on testing program", and "No greater story can be told than the effect of the bull on his daughters." Continuous production records and the use of bulls that transmit high production are a sure means of making progress in dairying, said Mr. Morley.

In the judging contest a ring of four cows was properly placed by Mrs. F. H. Starr, Corning; E. H. Ackerman, Mrs. H. D. Grist, Roy E. Grist, and G. R. Woodward, Woodhull; Clair Bennett and Beatrice Miller of Howard; and Frank Bly, Pine City.

Proper placements were also made by Richard Stimson, Alfred Station; R. L. Bennett, Lawrenceville; K. V. Carey, Bath; Alvaro Lyke, Avoca; John E. Smith, Kanona; Mrs. Glenn C. Covell, Wellsville; and Joseph Kelly of Friendship. The group was judged by Ira G. Payne of East Schodack, a noted breeder and judge of Jersey cattle.

The hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Cash Willis and a program of sports and educational events, were enjoyed by a group of more than 200 breeders representing every community in Steuben County. The meeting was organized by the farm bureau with the assistance of a committee which included: A. W. Norris, Kanona; B. H. Frazier, Bath; Dr. Frank Starr, Corning; R. W. Herrington, Woodhull; Cash Willis, Howard; and Ray Marvin, Arkport.

BRASS TACKS For POULTRY RAISERS

By BURTON P. THARP

HEAT PROSTRATION

Many of the deaths in the poultry flocks which are attributed to heat prostration are preventable if proper care and housing are given. Sometimes the cause is not heat at all. Any birds which die in hot weather should be carefully examined for other ailments.

Birds which die of heat prostration may be the best ones in the flock and may show no symptoms of disease. Quite often the best layers may be found dead in the nest or laying house.

There are several conditions which may exist in the flock house or yard that cause losses from heat prostration. The birds may be too fat. The poultry house may be too small for the flock or poorly ventilated. The birds may be in poor physical condition because of too little exercise. The range or poultry yard may have little or no shade. The water may be stale and warm.

If no disease is found make sure that the flock has shade at least during the hot part of the day. If necessary change the fence to include a tree in the yard.

Watch the water supply. Change the water several times each day during hot weather and place the fountain or dish where the sun cannot strike it.

Check up the number of square feet of floor space and the number of birds occupying it. Remember that each full-grown bird should have three and one-half to four feet of floor space.

Some deaths may occur during the night when the birds are roosting. The birds may be crowded on the roosts. Space the roosts about 14 or 15 inches apart and allow 10 or 12 inches of roost for each bird. Mediterranean breeds need less space than the heavier breeds. Eight inches is usually sufficient for Leghorns.

Allan Taylor on Way Home From S. Africa

Allan Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Taylor is now on the way home from his post in the Consulate at Cape Town South Africa. Mr. Taylor sailed August 18 and is due to arrive at New York September 4, having a two months leave of absence. He is sailing on a fast boat which makes only one port on the way, St. Helena where Napoleon spent his days in lonely exile. Allan's many friends will look forward with keen interest to the stories he can tell of that far distant land in which he has been living.

Big Oil Cracker Derailed Here Saturday

An oil cracking unit consigned to a Texas refinery, said to have been one of the largest single-piece shipments ever sent over a railroad, became derailed in the Addison yard Thursday and all westbound traffic was tied up for several hours.

The unit, specifically a heat interchanger was loaded on two special six-wheel trucks. Reaching Addison, it was necessary to switch the shipment to the siding just west of the Erie station to allow a freight to pass. In some manner it became derailed and the wrecking crew from Hornell was required to place it back in position.

The tank was 72 feet long and 13 feet, 5 inches in diameter with a capacity of 135 tons. Due to its unusual bulk it was necessary for the special conveying train to stop for every bridge and close clearance. The train traveled at a speed limit of fifteen miles an hour.

W. S. Cole to Be Member NRCL

W. Sterling Cole, representative in Congress from the 37th District, has accepted an invitation to become a member of the Advisory Council of the National Republican Constitution League, Inc., with headquarters in the Stanley Theatre Building, Journal Square, Jersey City, N. J. The League, which has the endorsement of Landon and Knox, is selecting a few outstanding Republican leaders to advise workers on the national program being formulated to secure the election of the Republican candidates.

Theodore Roosevelt, son of the "great" Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, is head of the Council. Other members include Harry W. Nice, governor of Maryland; C. Douglas Buck, governor of Delaware; Frank D. Fitzgerald, governor of Michigan.

Congressman Cole, in his letter of acceptance, says: "In these days of continued flouting of the Constitution by the Administration and repeated attacks upon American institutions and principles of society, I feel it is the duty of every person who cherishes these institutions and principles to enlist his time, services and energy in defense of them".

Jack Holt Plays a Soldier of Fortune

Called one of the finest productions in which Jack Holt ever has been starred, Universal's thrilling screenplay dealing with aviation and love in South America, "Storm Over the Andes", comes on Friday and Saturday to the Avon Theatre. The screenplay deals with the adventures of Holt as an American soldier of fortune who joins the air corps of one of the fighting countries as a combat pilot.

In the cast of the production are Antonia Moreno, making a comeback on the American screen after five years in Spanish motion pictures; beautiful Mona Barrie, who plays the part of a gay senora; Gene Lockhart celebrated as a stage and screen comedian, Juanita Garfias, a Spanish pepperpot, Grant Withers, famous for his work in "The Collegians."

Colorful highlights of the story include a gay fiesta in a South American city; the strafing of airports at the front; several air battles; the blasting of munition dumps, and some spectacular flying by veteran aviators. Two plane crashes take place in the course of the picture.

Holt saves his commanding officer, brings down a giant bomber, captures the ace of the enemy air forces and does several other hair-raising and thrilling stunts. The production was directed for Universal by W. Christy Cabanne, from a story by Eliot Gibbons and Lacelde Christy.

many cubic feet there are in the buildings of Allegheny, Providence or Corning and I sometimes wonder whether the expenditure of 10 million dollars would discover a cubic inch of real brains in Washington, D. C.

"Suppose in 1932 that Mr. Roosevelt had solemnly made these promises: I will not balance the every dollar we take in, I will increase government spending so budget, I will spend two dollars for that the United States is going in debt $10,000 every minute, I will make Congress hand over its law making power to me, I will attack and condemn the Supreme Court and the Constitution, I will not reduce unemployment, I will pay American farmers not to plant 30 million acres, I will force the people to buy from foreign farmers the food which could have been and would have been raised on these 30 million acres.

"I will not reduce the number of people dependent upon relief, I will play politics with human misery, I will abolish the rights of states and put everything under federal control as they do in Europe, I will nearly double the cost of living for the little fellow, I will harness business and use public money to put the government into business to compete with our citizens, I will undermine the Civil Service system and give federal jobs mostly to those who can show Jim Farley that they can control votes for the New Deal and add 300,000 job holders to the public payroll.

"I will stir up class hatred and be the first president to do this, I will repudiate the platform adopted by the Democratic Party and put into effect the platform of the Socialist Party, and I will retard recovery so that in the list of nations, the United States will stand 15th in percentage of recovery among all the nations of the world."

"These are the things which Franklin Roosevelt as President has actually done."

G. Mason Owlett Talks

Congressman W. Sterling Cole of Bath introduced Senator Owlett, who said in part:

"If America is to continue as a land of opportunity with the general enjoyment by all of the better things of life, we cannot have as a permanent part of our economy public doles and general permanent work relief. Appeals by the New Dealers for the support of youth constitute the supreme effrontery of political history. What, pray tell me, has the Roosevelt Administration and its horde of intellectual experimenters to offer in return for the vote of an American youth.

"Everyone who realizes what this campaign means to the future of our country should dedicate himself today to bring about a restoration of the American form of government through the election this fall of Landon and Knox.

Says Landon Can Win

"Don't let anyone tell you that this election cannot be won. Such a statement, to my mind, is an admission that the American people are not fit to govern themselves, that the American people do not think for themselves. If, however, the election is to be won, it cannot be won by the old methods.

"We have never had before an enemy to fight that is willing to ruthlessly use all the instrumentalities that it has at its command for purely partisan political purposes. Whoever would have dreamed that a government supported by the taxes of the people would have, for instance, the audacity, at public expense, to produce motion picture films solely for the purpose of furthering the political ends of the party in power?

"I believe that the American people will pull off the sheep's clothing from the New Deal wolf and reveal it in its true light. The wolf that has covered the federal Civil Service into a bare-faced spoils system, a wolf that has used the money of taxpayers of all political parties to build up a propaganda machine to aid its efforts to continue in power, a wolf that has prostituted the administration of the relief of the unfortunate for partisan political ends, a wolf that has opened the American markets to imports of foodstuffs to the detriment of the American farmer, a wolf that has led the nation far along the road toward national bankruptcy and at all times has manifested its contempt for constitutional government."

A. C. Dixon, Corning representative of local labor unions, spoke briefly on the need for support of the Constitution and the use of the right of franchise this year. He introduced Willson R. Campbell, Bath, who is being sponsored for the State Comptroller.

State Senator Joe R. Hanley also spoke briefly.
